Welcome to Dingolfing.
This brochure is designed to help you get to know our beautiful city for the first time. On the following pages you will discover the rich history, the many leisure activities and the attractive business location of Dingolfing. Important addresses and information about the kindergartens and schools are also included.

The image of our provincial capital has changed significantly in recent years. Modern architecture paired with lavishly renovated historic buildings. Imposing squares, quiet inner courtyards, a wide variety of shops and diverse restaurants invite you to linger. Tradition and customs are upheld here, while the rural surroundings encourage enjoyment and relaxation. Our innovative city benefits from its exceptional position as a "car city", culturally, socially and economically. Dingolfing is an attractive place for all generations.

Yours

Armin Grassinger

THE HISTORIC CITY

Dingolfing is located on the River Isar, in the middle of the Lower Bavarian hills, 100 kilometres north-east of the state capital of Munich.

The Isar divides the city into the historic Old City and the New City. The city was first mentioned in a document in 770, referred to as Tingulunga with a church and a royal court. The historic Old City is characterised by its double city layout. Around the parish church of St. Johannes is the oldest settlement and economic area. In 1251, the Bavarian Duke Otto II of the House of Wittelsbach founded his own city on the mountain spur jutting out towards the Isar: today's Upper City.

The entire Old City was surrounded by a fortified wall with mighty towers. Parts of this fortification are still preserved today as architectural monuments, such as the important high bridge as the southern entrance to the Upper City, the Storch and Stinkerturm towers and the only surviving city gate, the Wollertor, on Marienplatz. However, the late Gothic parish church of St John (vaulted in 1502), a typical bare brick building with a valuable interior, is the most impressive of all.

From the end of the 13th century, settlements also developed on the other side of the Isar, the so-called Schwaigen: Goben, Höll, Geratsberg and Sossau, which characterised the New City as mainly livestock farms right up to the present day.

Dingolfing's first heyday was in the centuries between 1350 and 1600, as evidenced by the townhouses and official residences that have been preserved, such as Herzogsburg Castle – today part of the Dingolfing Museum – with its rich west façade. The city's development was disrupted by the great European wars. In 1743, the city was largely burnt to the ground during the War of the Austrian Succession, and the city hall and archives were also destroyed in the flames. With the onset of the general wave of industrialisation in the second half of the 19th century, the City of Dingolfing also began to change for the better. The connection to the railway network and the pioneering spirit of the Glas family of entrepreneurs, who set up Dingolfing's largest industrial plant in 1905, led to a lasting improvement in social, economic and cultural conditions. Before the Second World War, Dingolfing was the largest producer of seed drills in Europe and after the war it became the legendary – Goggo city" with the production of motorised scooters and automobiles. In 1967, Bayerische Motoren Werke AG took over the company Hans Glas GmbH.

The first BMW rolled off the production line in 1973 in one of the most modern car plants in Europe, built on a greenfield site in Isarmoos. Today, around 18,000 people are employed there.

With the territorial reform in 1972, Dingolfing was given the administration of the newly formed district of Dingolfing-Landau. The market city of Teisbach and the municipality of Frauenbiburg are assigned to the city. Industrial development makes the city a magnet for new residents. The New City in particular undergoes a radical change in the settlement pattern. Entire new neighbourhoods are built. At the same time, the urban infrastructure is expanded, with the construction of schools, kindergartens, a New City hall and spacious leisure facilities such as an indoor swimming pool, ice rink, gymnasiums, etc.

The primary goal of current urban structural measures is the "Old City centre renewal". This will give Dingolfing an attractive, citizen-friendly and traffic-calmed city centre.

THE COAT OF ARMS OF THE CITY

The Bavarian diamonds and the red shield head above them with three six-pointed golden stars form Dingolfing's coat of arms. In the course of the expansion of the state by the Bavarian dukes from the House of Wittelsbach, Otto II founded the city in 1251 by a military act on the hill above the old episcopal Regensburg settlement of Dingolfing in the area of the parish church. The city soon became the seat of justice. In 1274 it was granted various city charter articles and a council constitution was formed. The oldest city seal dates back to this time, of which imprints are known from 1290. In its shield shape, it resembles the somewhat earlier city seal of Landau a. d. Isar. The former pointed shield contains only two stars in the head, below which are the lozenges indicating the city lord. The stars apparently symbolise the two centres of power from which the City of Dingolfing grew together after 1265 – the year of a reconciliation treaty between the duke and the bishop. The following seal from the middle of the 14th century already shows three stars instead of two, which have remained unchanged to this day. The inclusion of the third star in the seal and coat of arms is in all probability due to the incorporation of the area to the left of the Isar around the Schwaig villages from Goben to Sossau into the City of Dingolfing by the duke in 1330. Thus the stars are still a reminder of all the settlement sites of the city's development. The Bavarian historian Aventin already describes the colours of the shield head in this way. In the 16th century, the diamonds were sometimes also depicted in the opposite direction. An insignificant Baroque addition are small angel heads outside the shield in a signet that was used in the municipal chancellery during the 18th century. In the 19th century, the so-called mural crown was added to the coat of arms, a purely romantic addition. Around 700 years have passed since the Dingolfing coat of arms was introduced. To this day, it is the only generally recognised and understandable symbol for the city and its citizens.

TWIN CITIES

The City of Dingolfing entered into a city twinning agreement with the city of Enns on 17 October 1965 and with the city of Brumath on 26 September 1970. Since then, the citizens of our city and the citizens of our twin cities have been getting to know each other. Regular visits by the city council and local clubs and societies have fostered and strengthened contact between the inhabitants of the twin cities.

Brumath

Brumath is a city founded in Roman times in the Eisass at the end of the Zorn Valley, approx. 17 km north-west of Strasbourg. Brumath has just under 10,000 inhabitants.

Enns

Enns is the oldest city in Austria and has around 11,000 inhabitants. Enns is located in the province of Upper Austria on the western bank of the River Enns, approx. 4 kilometres above the mouth of the Enns into the Danube.

DINGOLFING THE CAR CITY

Automobiles have been produced in Dingolfing since 1954.

It all began with the Glas company, which had been based in Dingolfing as a seed drill factory since 1905. It initially switched from agricultural machinery production to motorised scooters (1951) and later to car manufacturing. Since then, the City of Dingolfing has also been associated with the Goggomobil.

These vehicles epitomised the post-war small car and became part of the economic miracle. At the time, it was the most frequently built small car in Germany. The Glas company was taken over by Bayerische Motoren Werke in the 1960s as a result of concentration initiatives in the German economy.

BMW AG's decision to take over Glas in 1967 and to secure and expand the industrial location gave the city an enormous boost to its economy. In the meantime, the second largest plant of the BMW Group with around 18,000 employees has been established in Dingolfing.

TRANSPORT LINKS

Dingolfing is located 100 km north-east of Munich and 32 km north-east of Landshut in the Isar valley.

Accessible by Deutsche Bahn AG trains and several bus lines (from Landshut and Straubing).

Accessible by car via the A92 motorway (Munich-Deggendorf), the state roads St 2074 (former B11, Munich-Deggendorf), St 2327 and St 2111.

Munich Airport is only 70 km away, the free port of Deggendorf around 40 km. The Dingolfing special landing site also offers the opportunity to reach Dingolfing from the air.

FROM TOLL HOUSE TO INFORMATION CENTRE

Since the middle of 2004, the Bruckstadel in the Fischerei has been used as a joint Information Centre with an integrated event room by the City of Dingolfing and the district of Dingolfing-Landau.

Accessibility certified

The Bruckstadel is a central hub for citizens and guests of the city who are interested in art and culture. A wide range of brochures, leisure tips, event information and publications from public institutions are available in this historic setting.

Guided tours and events can be booked here. The event room on the upper floor of the former toll house is available for readings, lectures, concerts, presentations, seminars and exhibitions.

Among other things, the annual autumn exhibition of the artists' association Isargilde e.V. takes place in the Bruckstadel. The building, which is around 250 years old, was originally used as a toll house. In 1743, the Bruckstadel was completely destroyed by the great city fire, but was rebuilt in 1752. Various public and later private uses characterised the following centuries.

In 1999, the City of Dingolfing bought the Bruckstadel and decided to renovate it. The joint utilisation with the district of Dingolfing-Landau allows comprehensive information and support for visitors. The historical context, local ties and originality of the building fabric create a stylish ambience. The event room and the Information Centre in the Bruckstadel have been assessed in accordance with the guidelines of the "Travel for All" certification system. All test-relevant areas fulfil the quality criteria of the "Accessibility tested – partially barrier-free for people with walking disabilities and wheelchair users" label.

THE HEART OF THE CITY

The Dingolfing Museum is located in the Upper City and extends over three historic buildings: the Herzogsburg, the Pflughof and the Getreidekasten. They house an extensive exhibition on Dingolfing's urban and industrial history from the Neolithic Age to the present day.

HISTORY OF THE CITY IN THE DUKE'S CASTLE

The ducal castle, built around 1410, served as the official residence of the Bavarian dukes. Today it displays exhibits on the development of craftsmanship, agriculture and urban life.

ARCHAEOLOGY IN THE PFLUGHOF

The Pflughof presents archaeological finds from the Neolithic Age to the present day. A reconstruction of early historical lifestyles illustrates everyday life at the time.

INDUSTRIAL HISTORY IN THE GETREIDEKASTEN

Der The Getreidekasten documents Dingolfing's industrial development over an area of 1,000 square metres. The exhibition shows the success story of the Glas company, which was founded in Dingolfing in 1905 and characterised the city as an industrial location with the construction of the legendary Goggomobil from 1955. After the takeover by BMW in the 1970s, one of the most modern car factories in the world was built. Today, Dingolfing is the BMW Group's second largest production site. The exhibition highlights the technical developments, innovations and changes in the world of work over the decades.

GUIDED TOURS AND MUSEUM EDUCATION

Guided tours convey the exciting history of the city. There is also an accompanying educational programme for schools and kindergartens that provides age-appropriate insights into the history of the city and its industry.

GET MARRIED IN THE MUSEUM

The registry office on the ground floor of Herzogsburg Castle offers a unique ambience for weddings. The stylish furnishings and historical backdrop make the special day unforgettable.

THIS IS WHERE THE MUSIC PLAYS

Dingolfing Municipal Music School is a member of the Association of German Music Schools and the Association of Bavarian Singing and Music Schools. 24 teachers (qualified music teachers with a degree from a conservatory or university) teach around 1,000 children, young people and adults in all musical subject areas. Musical education can begin at the age of two in the music kindergarten. After completing this, they move on to lessons in solo singing, string instruments, plucked instruments, woodwind and brass instruments, percussion, keyboard instruments or hand-played instruments.

Associated basic, theory or supplementary subjects, ensembles and orchestras for all instrumentations and styles, in which the young musicians can participate, as well as the ballet class round off the spectrum of this municipal institution. Lessons take place in the school's own music school building. Lessons are given in large groups, in groups of two, three and four, as well as in individual lessons. The current tuition fees can be obtained from the music school office. The municipal music school is subject to the holiday and public holiday regulations for general education schools in Bavaria.

A PLACE FOR MORE THAN JUST BOOKS IN THE HEART OF DINGOLFING

Kreis- und Stadtbibliothek Dingolfing

The large and modern district and city library is very centrally located on Marienplatz in Dingolfing. It is a public institution and is freely accessible to all and can be used on site. In addition, the City of Dingolfing provides all citizens who live in the city or the surrounding area with a free library card, which entitles them to borrow books. The 1,200 square metre library has over 33,000 items to borrow: Books, magazines, audio books, DVDs, console games, CDs and Tonies. Daily newspapers, such as the Dingolfinger Anzeiger or the Süddeutsche Zeitung, can also be read on site. Don't have time or don't feel like coming to the library? No problem! Use our online services from the comfort of your own home and around the clock.

"Onleihe24 Ostbayern" offers eBooks, audio books for streaming, as well as magazines and newspapers. "Badico" also offers digital literature and audio books, in many languages, and has a wide range of international magazines on offer. Our streaming service Freegal offers free streaming of music and limited downloads are also possible there.

However, the library not only has a wide range of media: there are also numerous places to sit and read, study or work, a reading café with a coffee machine, free WIFI, Internet PCs with printers and a photocopier. Events for children and adults are also organised at regular intervals. The team at the district and city library look forward to your visit!

MEETING PLACE FOR ALL DEMOGRAPHICS

The District Centre North located in the lively Höll-Ost district, which is characterised by a colourful and diverse range of people with a migration background and different countries of origin. Here, as in Dingolfing as a whole, there is a great need for integration work. The District Centre North is a place of cultural exchange and offers the opportunity to facilitate low-barrier-to-entry encounters between all Dingolfing residents. The neighbourhood management, based in the District Centre North, is responsible for the various offers, the allocation of rooms and all events in the building. The aim is to bring people (with and without a migration background) together and offer a wide range of activities, such as creative courses, language courses for children and adults, leisure activities, club meetings and the reading club for children. The offers and courses vary according to need and are organised by the neighbourhood management, the street work team of the City of Dingolfing, the senior citizens' advisory council of the City of Dingolfing, local institutions (such as Caritas Dingolfing e.V. or FreiwilligenAgentur Dingolfing-Landau e.V.) or various migrant associations. This results in a varied weekly programme. In addition, the city's open youth work with the youth club "Get2Gether" is located in the District Centre North as a branch office. The District Centre North offers the opportunity to get involved in a diverse social environment and, with its many rooms, terrace and open spaces around the building, provides plenty of room for great projects. In principle, the premises in the District Centre North are available to all residents' initiatives and associations recognised as charitable. If you would like to find out more, please get in touch with us at the neighbourhood management!

FURTHER INFO

You are welcome to visit us and find out more about the District Centre North on site. We look forward to hearing from you and hearing your ideas for offers, projects and suggestions!

CARE AND NURSING IN THE HEART OF THE CITY

Our facility is located in the centre of our city. Divided into two buildings, the Bürgerheim offers places for 136 senior citizens in need of care and two short-term care places. Under the auspices of the Obere Spitalstiftung, the facility also offers assisted living with 14 flats and day care with 20 places as well as the Altenservice Centre (advice on ageing, care insurance, etc.). All residents' rooms have their own bathroom and telephone connections. A large garden and the proximity to the city centre provide plenty of scope for leisure activities. If possible, the existing doctor can and should continue to provide general medical care. Our own kitchen conjures up fresh and delicious meals every day, with ingredients sourced locally. In addition, the laundry is done by our own staff. The care team at the citizens' home organises daily activities and entertainment for the elderly. These daily activities are rounded off by numerous events throughout the year. Examples include excursions and birthday parties, Maypole erection or visits from the clinic clowns.

Every day, our approximately 120 employees put their heart and soul into ensuring the well-being of the people entrusted to our care. As an employer, Bürgerheim offers a wide range of attractive benefits: lively company health management, jump-in bonuses and other benefits, payment according to TVöD plus additional days off – to name just a few plus points. We also emphasise training. In cooperation with all the training schools in the area (Landau, Landshut, Vilsbiburg), the nursing staff of the future are trained in a modern and committed way.

A dedicated training room, activity days and, of course, the availability of trained practical instructors are small proof of this. The managers and all employees always have an open ear for the people entrusted to them – whether they are people in need of care, relatives, employees or trainees. A good and open exchange of information,

Not just suggestions, but also worries and needs are important to us.

STRENGTHENING COMPETITIVENESS THROUGH RESEARCH

The City of Dingolfing and Landshut University of Applied Sciences established the Technology Centre for Production and Logistics Systems (TZ Puls) at the Dingolfing site with the involvement of regional industry partners. Since April 2016, four professors and their staff have been working, teaching and researching at the branch of Landshut University of Applied Sciences on the topics of Intelligent production logistics, lean management, digitalisation and Industry 4.0. The aim of TZ PULS is to sustainably strengthen the region's competitiveness through joint research with industry. In addition to the partners involved, all manufacturing companies in the region have access to the research results through trade fairs, events and publications and benefit from a wide range of training and further education opportunities. In terms of content, TZ PULS focuses on intelligent production logistics. This covers the entire internal value chain, from incoming goods and storage to internal material provision, the arrangement of structural units and the control of processes through to outgoing goods. Research at TZ PULS focuses on promising topics such as artificial intelligence, the Internet of Things and the like. Building on previous research successes and sustainable technology transfer, TZ PULS was able to develop the learning and model factory into an innovation factory through the "PRINCE" project funded by the Bavarian State Ministry of Science and the Arts, among others. This was officially opened in 2024 and more than 20 innovations, nine of which are already patent pending, have proven that production and logistics processes are being rethought here. In February 2025, it became official: the patent was granted for the O-cell concept, clearly demonstrating the role of TZ PULS as a centre of innovation in production logistics.

In the area of continuing education, TZ PULS now offers a wide range of continuing education courses in the field of production logistics in addition to the two part-time Master's degree programmes Process Management & Resource Efficiency1 and Value-Oriented Production Management1. In October 2023, the new English-language Bachelor's degree programme Sustainable Industrial Operations and Business (SIOB) was introduced at TZ PULS. This interdisciplinary degree programme combines technical, business and international knowledge against the backdrop of sustainability. The dual study & work concept enables students to gain practical experience at regional companies during their studies. The aim is to train young talent for a sustainable future and retain them as skilled workers in the region. In order to meet the requirements of the new degree programme, the TZ PULS was extended to include a lecture hall building. This extension was made possible with the support of the City of Dingolfing and represents an important step in the further development of the university location. The centrepiece of the TZ PULS is the learning and model factory, a unique feature in the German university landscape, which offers a first-class demonstration, research and training location. Covering an area of 900 square metres, it depicts the end-to-end internal value chain of a medium-sized company (with around 120 employees) from incoming goods to dispatch, including the latest technologies. With technical equipment totalling around 1.5 million euros, the TZ PULS offers the ideal platform for companies to get to know and understand the technical building blocks for process innovation in a very realistic environment. In this way, the competitiveness and growth of manufacturing companies in the region can be sustainably improved.

A CENTRE OF ENCOUNTER

The distances are short and there is no way around it: the Stadthalle in the heart of Dingolfing.

The architecture of the Dingolfer Stadthalle is characterised by its design consistency. It conveys a flair of understated elegance, noble materials and subtle colours. Whether theatre, concert or conference – you feel at home in this atmosphere. The Stadthalle is a centre for meetings, relaxation, cultural enjoyment, but also for the activities of Dingolfing's citizens and interested parties. The clubs and societies have a wide range of options for organising events. Carnival balls, exhibitions, internal club meetings and national congresses are just some of the ways in which the city hall is used. Not to be forgotten is the city's cultural programme and the events that are held by external organisers throughout the year. The programme ranges from A for "Antiques Fairs" to Z for "Gypsy Baron (Zigeunerbaron)". Stadthalle Dingolfing has also made a name for itself as a congress and conference venue. Situated in the heart of Lower Bavaria, surrounded by the best infrastructure, Dingolfing and its city hall are always a popular choice as a conference venue. Variable seating options and comprehensive, state-of-the-art stage and event technology make every type of event a special experience. Catering that meets all culinary requirements rounds off the Dingolfing Stadthalle/s offer for organisers and visitors.

CLIMATE PROTECTION IN DINGOLFING

The City of Dingolfing is actively committed to climate protection and the energy transition. Through targeted programmes, we promote renewable energy, reduce CO2 emissions and support citizens in their own climate protection measures. Together, we are shaping a sustainable future.

COMMUNITY FUNDING PROGRAMME

An important component is the Dingolfing climate protection campaign, which provides financial support for citizens to implement their own climate protection projects. Funding is provided for the replacement of old heating systems, among other things, insulation measures, balcony power stations and electricity storage. With attractive grants – in addition to the available federal subsidies – the City of Dingolfing is incentivising more climate protection within your own four walls.

CLIMATE PROTECTION PROJECTS IN THE CITY

Climate protection, energy efficiency and climate change adaptation also play a central role in the cityscape. In order to make the heat supply in the urban area more climate-friendly, we are investigating the potential for utilising renewable energies and expanding the existing district heating network with municipal heat planning. We also want to counter the effects of climate change. The city has developed a comprehensive heat protection concept, including measures to increase greenery in the urban area, in order to maintain the quality of life of its citizens, particularly in hot summers. The city is also focussing on renewable energies in local public transport. Since 2024, the all-electric city buses, the “Dingos”, have been in operation with zero emissions and an extended route network, making public transport even more attractive. In addition, the cycle path network is being continuously expanded to promote climate-friendly mobility and reduce the impact of motorised road traffic.

SUSTAINABLE BUILDING

The city is setting a good example: Urban construction projects fulfil efficiency house class 40 – a guarantee for low energy consumption. Heat is supplied via sustainable technologies such as heat pumps and district heating. The use of wood as a building material, photovoltaic systems and green roofs combine climate protection with modern architecture. Energy-efficient refurbishment of existing buildings is also high on the agenda in order to conserve resources and reduce energy consumption.

PUBLIC RELATIONS AND PARTICIPATION

The involvement of citizens is particularly important to us. We offer platforms for education and dialogue through a series of lectures, workshops and information campaigns. Projects such as the climate painting competition or interactive experiments at the Natur.Erlebnis.Fest make climate protection tangible for children and young people. Project days on energy transition and resource conservation are also organised at schools and at TZ Puls.

CLIMATE PROTECTION IN EVERYDAY LIFE

From current projects and energy – saving tips to funding opportunities – the City of Dingolfing provides comprehensive information at www.klimaschutz-dingolfing.de. There you can find out how you can protect the climate and save money at the same time.

THE DESIRE FOR FOLK FESTIVALS IS UNBROKEN

KIRTA

“Our Kirta – Bavaria’s last Wies’n”. The love of folk festivals in Lower Bavaria is unbroken – as evidenced by the many festivals that take place throughout the state between April and October. As the third weekend in October approaches, the series of folk festivals in Bavaria comes to a close with the Dingolfer Kirta. Even after more than 200 years, our Kirta has retained its original character and down-to-earth nature. In the past, it was enough to celebrate the Kirchweih folk festival from “Sunnta to Irta” and add the Kugelkirta, but now the festival begins on Friday and ends on Wednesday. Days of informal merriment spread through the city. Old and young are united, the surrounding area, the locals and visitors enjoy the Kirta together. Our special guided tours of the Dingolfer Kirta have become a wonderful tradition. Immerse yourself in the history of the Dingolfer Kirta with tour guide Franz Wagner. During the tour of the traditional folk festival, he will go into the background of the showmen and the varied history of the Kirta. The guided tours take place from Friday to Wednesday at 17.00. The tour fee is €8 per person. Additional group tours are also available on request.

For information about the special tours, please call:
Phone: +49 (0) 8731/32 71 00.

DINGFEST:

The Dingfest was first organised as an open-air event on Dingolfing’s Marienplatz in 2010. The city and the BMW Group Dingolfing plant joined forces as partners to launch this festival, which takes place every two years. During the European and World Cups, the final matches are shown to visitors on a large LED screen as public viewing. Every day during the festival there is a cultural programme ranging from local and regional artists to national and international artists and bands. For example, Nico Santos, dicht & ergreifend and Christina Stürmer have already performed live. And don’t forget that admission to the entire festival is free.

DELICACIES AND TRADITIONAL

NIKOLAUSMARKT

From the first to the second weekend of Advent, stalls selling Christmas delicacies and historical crafts line up in the heart of the Old City. The scent of mulled wine, bratwurst and sweet treats allow visitors to forget the stresses of everyday life. A stroll through the market is like a winter walk. Demonstrations of historical handicraft techniques, Christmas music and arts and crafts await visitors of all ages. It has already become a favourite and familiar sight for market visitors: the Winter Dream Forest. With its thousands of small lights, it surrounds the market and creates a Christmassy atmosphere. The large nativity scene is an eye-catching highlight in the centre of the traditional Christmas market. St Nicholas and his little band of angels enchant visitors every day. A varied and atmospheric supporting programme creates the pre-Christmas mood.

Let the great offers and the wonderful atmosphere at the Dingolfing Nikolausmarkt get you in the mood for the approaching Christmas season!

MITTEFASTENMARKT

Market rights were already included with the first granting of city privileges (documented in 1274). At the beginning of the 14th century, four annual markets are mentioned in addition to the usual weekly markets.

The four markets were declared open markets, i.e. freely accessible. The history of the City of Dingolfing and its surroundings by Dr J. W. Eberl mentions a Schrankenmarkt (grain market) as well as weekly, monthly and eight goods markets in 1856. Five of these were held in the Upper City, the three mid-fast markets in the lower city. In 1883, J. Sixt stated in his description of the Dingolfing district that the demise of the markets in the Upper City was only a matter of time. The reason was the lack of visitors and vendors. In contrast to the fasting markets in the Lower City. The tradition of the two still existing Dingolfing Central Lent Markets in the Lower City can be traced back to the beginning of the 17th century. In 1831, five fasting markets were reduced to three in favour of an increase in livestock markets and around 1870-75 to the two that still exist today. In common parlance, they are referred to as the single and married markets, a term used to describe a time when farm servants and farmers themselves could only take turns getting out of work. To this day, the two markets are still very popular with vendors and consumers.

WEEKLY MARKET

The weekly market at Marienplatz takes place on Tuesdays and Fridays from 07.00-12.00. The market offers a wide range of local fruit and vegetables, sausage and meat products, cheese and dairy products, honey, baked goods, flowers and much more.

DINGOLFING MUSEUM

The historically significant building complex comprises three buildings, all of which were erected between 1410 and 1477: the ducal castle, one of the most beautiful and best-preserved secular buildings of the late Gothic period in Lower Bavaria, the Pflerhof and the granary. The Dingolfing Museum tells the story of the city and its industrial history from its beginnings to the present day.

www.museum-dingolfing.de

HIGH BRIDGE

The Dingolfing High Bridge is considered a landmark of the city. It led the formerly important north-south connecting road coming from Frontenhausen over the incision of the Asenbach stream into the "upper" city. The brick structure was built in 1612 with five round arched bays (approx. 18.4 metres high) and restored in 1966. It is part of the medieval city wall that has been preserved to this day. With its outer high bridge arch and the Nepomuk wayside shrine, it is still an important stop on guided tours of historic Dingolfing.

ST JOHN THE BAPTIST AND EVANGELIST

The foundation stone of the three-aisled hall church was laid in 1467. Remarkable features: 13 round columns, net vault with star-shaped figuration, ten side chapels with late Gothic and Baroque frescoes, two-storey sacristy, larger-than-life so-called Colossal Lord God from 1522 and two life-size wooden figures of the two church patrons at the side of the high altar. The church is one of the most important sacred buildings of the late Gothic period in Bavaria.

ST. ANTON

Built before 1432 as the church of the associated infirmary or leprosarium, extended in 1895 (new nave and tower), late Gothic choir with net vaulting. Noteworthy furnishings: choir stalls from around 1700 from the Franciscan church demolished in 1804, wooden sculpture of the church patron from around 1530 (in the St. Josef vicarage). The church is only open during church services or on booked guided tours.

TRINITY CHURCH

Opposite the south entrance of St John's parish church is the Erasmii, better known as the shoemaker's chapel. The single-nave church with net vaulting was built at the end of the 15th century. Attached to it is an ossuary, the so-called Seelenkammerl or Karner from the 17th century. Features: wooden group with the Adoration of the Magi on the altar from around 1480, wooden Karner structure with panel paintings in the ossuary from the mid-18th century, containing painted and inscribed skulls.

ST LEONARD IN OBERDINGOLFING

The church, built before 1484 as a votive church for the townspeople – the nave was vaulted in 1610 – impresses with its richly structured north tower and remarkable furnishings: 17th/18th century altars, choir stalls from 1716, Stations of the Cross from around 1700 from the former Franciscan church in Dingolfing, wooden epitaphs for Swedish hostages from 1633. The church is only open during church services or on booked guided tours.

GEISSLUNG-CHRISTI-KIRCHE

The Geißlung-Christi-Kirche was built in 1753 by the Dingolfing master bricklayer Johann Matthias Weigenthaler instead of a small church built in 1681. Features: wooden altar with sculpture of Christ at the scourging column from 1756, organ positive from 1769, the only rococo church in Dingolfing. The church is only open during church services or when guided tours are booked.

BRUCKSTADEL

The Bruckstadel dates back to the 14th century and originally served as the toll collector's office. Destroyed in the great city fire in 1743, the building was rebuilt in 1752. After extensive renovation, the Bruckstadel is now the joint tourist Information Centre of the City of Dingolfing and the Dingolfing-Landau holiday region, including a function room for conferences, exhibitions, concerts and seminars.

MEAT BANK

The two-storey Renaissance building dates back to the 16th century. Its most characteristic design element is the semi-circular landings attached to the steps of the steep gable. On the ground floor of the building, the city's butchers used to have their butchers' stalls and shop. Today, the building is used as a depot for the museum.

DISTRICT AND CITY LIBRARY

In 1884, Ferdinand Seethaler purchased the 150-year-old estate named after him for his son. He was a brewer and wanted to establish a new livelihood here. In 1906, the Wasserburger family took ownership of the site. In 2009, the City of Dingolfing bought the building. The district and city library has been housed here since 2013.

STORCHEN TOWER WITH BATTLEMENTS

Like the Stinker Tower and the High Bridge, the Storchen Tower is part of the remains of the medieval city wall that still exist today and is a landmark of the city. As there was a stork's nest on the plastered brick tower until around 1815, it was given the name Storchen Tower. In 1862, the tower was repaired and decorated with a neo-Gothic facade. It has had its current appearance, including the tent roof, since 1905.

STINKER TOWER

The Stinkerturm dates back to the 15th century and is a semi-circular brick tower with a conical roof made of hollow bricks. The tower - part of the medieval city fortifications - served as a citizen's prison. It remains to be seen whether it got its name from the pungent stench that emanated from the urination of the imprisoned citizens on the spot, or from the prisoners being called "stinking" people.

SCHMIED TOWER

Located halfway between the Upper and Lower City, you find the remains of the Schmied tower. The former watchtower was partially demolished in 1887. Originally, it reinforced the passage of the Old City fortifications, which ran from the Storchenturm down the slope to the Isartor (former city gate).

STEG TOWER

The core of the historic building with its thick foundation walls and almost square floor plan is probably the oldest building in the Lower City. The tower served as the home of one of the four night watchmen. In the 15th century, a front tower with a gate and so-called Wachtergangerl was added. It was used as an entrance to the city from the south-east until the 19th century.

WOLLERTOR

The Wollertor closes off Marienplatz to the east in the direction of Bräuhausgasse. It is the only remaining city gate in Dingolfing. Older views show it with a gabled roof; the present stepped gable does not appear to have been added until the 19th century. In earlier centuries, the cloth makers or woollen workers lived along Marienplatz, which was only given this name in 1867. The Wollertor once housed the night watchman's official residence.

TEISBACH CASTLE

The castle in Teisbach is one of the most historically important buildings in the Dingolfing area. It was built in the 14th century and almost completely rebuilt in the 16th century, underwent neo-Gothic alterations at the end of the 19th century and was finally extensively restored in 1970/72. Until 1803, the castle was the official residence of the bailiff over the court in Teisbach. Since 2013, the rectangular complex with its domed tower, gable with dovetail battlements and curtain wall has been owned by the City of Dingolfing and can be visited as part of a guided tour.

LEDERERGASSE

The Lederergasse is home to old craftsmen's houses from the 17th and 18th centuries. The workshop or shop rooms were located on the ground floor facing the street. There were two further rooms to the rear, one of which was used as a kitchen and the second as a living room. The living and sleeping areas were located on the upper floor, which generally faced the street. The attic was used as a storage room.

MARIENPLATZ

Marienplatz, the central square in the heart of Dingolfing's Old City centre, got its current name from the cast iron fountain built in 1867. In 1750, it was still located on the southern side of Marienplatz, approximately at the level of the building at number 8 Marienplatz, and was fed by water from the cooling fountain. Only then did it move to its current location. Today, the fountain is adorned by a statue of the Virgin Mary, which gives the fountain and square its name.

SPITALPLATZ

The historic square represents the interface between the historic city centre and the area directly in front of the Old City wall. The two-part fountain sculpture by Josef Sailstorfer shows, among other things, a 16 metre long and 8 metre high arc of tension, which can symbolise connection, dynamism, progress and movement. The central city bus stop (Dingos) is located on the square.

FOUNTAINS

Over 19 fountains, water features and works of art adorn the public spaces in Dingolfing. A city tour is offered especially for the fountains. One example is the fisherman's fountain, which Dingolfing artist Jutta Wimmer created from bronze in 2000. The fountain depicts a fisherman in historical clothing as well as local fish and crayfish and refers to the historical background of the former suburban fishing industry.

CYCLING AND HIKING TRAILS

BETWEEN URBAN HISTORY AND NATURAL EXPERIENCES

Dingolfing offers ideal conditions for a relaxing day trip filled with cultural highlights, peaceful walks, and cozy refreshment stops. Culture lovers will find a wide range of options:

At the Dingolfing Museum, located in the historic Herzogsburg Castle, visitors can explore the town's history from its medieval origins to its industrial present. Public guided tours through the old town offer insights into the town's architectural evolution and historical landmarks. Prefer to explore on your own? The Digital City Explorer allows you to discover Dingolfing at your own pace and access fascinating information directly on your smartphone. In the town center, charming cafés with homemade cakes and light meals invite you to pause and unwind. For those seeking nature, the city forest offers a quiet escape, ideal for a leisurely walk or a short hike along well-maintained paths. The nearby Isar River also provides beautiful trails through scenic landscapes, with plenty of benches along the way to take a break.

A short rest in nature can easily be combined with a visit to one of the cafés or restaurants nearby. And thanks to excellent train connections and the local Dingo city bus system, Dingolfing is easy to reach – perfect for a laid-back day of discovery between culture and nature.

Detailed information on the individual cycling and hiking trails can be found in our flyer in the Information Centre in the Bruckstadel.

FUN AND VARIETY

SKATE PARK – THE MEETING PLACE FOR SKATE ENTHUSIASTS

A paradise for skate enthusiasts is located right next to the Isar bridge. The local skater scene was involved right from the planning stage, resulting in a modern and attractive area. On around 1,300 square metres, there are a variety of elements, including downrails, ledges, step sets, quarter pipes and a rooftop manual table. The park is very popular and attracts skaters from all over the region.

PLAYGROUNDS – OVER 30 ADVENTURE PLACES FOR CHILDREN

Play and fun are top priorities in Dingolfing: more than 30 playgrounds are spread across the entire city area and offer a wide variety of play equipment – from swings and climbing frames to sandpits. Many of the playgrounds are surrounded by green spaces and invite children to come and play. There is a brochure with an overview of all the playgrounds and their equipment to help you keep track of the wide range on offer. It also includes alternatives for bad weather days, such as the Dingolfing Museum, the Caprima leisure pool, the DAV climbing centre or the DingoBurg indoor playground. The brochure is available at the Information Centre in the Bruckstadel and at Museum Dingolfing.

EXERCISE PARK – FITNESS AND RECREATION IN THE COUNTRYSIDE

The exercise park on Pappelweg between the city centre and the Isar floodplains is an inviting place for active recreation. The spacious facility is primarily aimed at adults aged 30 and over, but also offers ideal training opportunities for young people and senior citizens. Modern sports and training equipment selected according to the latest findings in sports medicine is installed along a ring course. A Kneipp basin to promote blood circulation completes the offer. An information board and instructions on the equipment help with correct use. Whether action, adventure or relaxation – Dingolfing offers the right leisure activities for every age group!

FURTHER INFO

Detailed information on the individual leisure facilities can be found in our brochure in the Information Centre in the Bruckstadel.

CLOSE TO NATURE AND CENTRAL

CARAVAN SITE AT THE CAPRIMA LEISURE POOL

Located right next to the Caprima leisure pool, this motorhome parking area offers twelve spaces. Despite its natural surroundings, the center of Dingolfing is quickly and easily accessible. Historic landmarks such as the Wollertor gate and the Storchenturm tower with its battlements invite visitors to take a stroll through the old town. Public transportation is also available. The site is equipped with electricity and water supply, which can be accessed via a chip system (available at the Caprima ticket counter). Disposal facilities for greywater and chemical toilets are available free of charge. Wi-Fi is provided, and dogs are welcome. Stays are limited to a maximum of three nights. Caravans, tents, and vehicles over four tons are not permitted. The site is open from the beginning of November to the end of September and offers an ideal combination of nature and proximity to the city.

CARAVAN SITE AT THE CIRCUS MEADOW

Located on the outskirts of Dingolfing, the motorhome parking area at the “Zirkuswiese” offers six free parking spaces on a gravel surface. The level ground ensures comfortable parking, while the town center—with sights such as the parish church of St. John, the Wollertor gate, and the elevated bridge—is within easy walking distance. A public transport stop is also located nearby. The site is well-lit and offers fresh water and electricity, which can be accessed via a chip system (available at the Caprima ticket counter). Dogs are welcome. The maximum stay is limited to three nights. Thanks to its central location and good facilities, this site is particularly well-suited for short stays or stopovers during travel.

OUR CITY BUS

You can see how the lines run in detail in the diagram. The central junction is always Spitalplatz.

Single tickets and one validation for multi-ride tickets are valid for one hour from the time of validation. Tickets must be validated immediately after boarding; transfers are permitted within the validity period of one hour. Monthly and annual tickets are transferable. Children under 7 accompanied by an adult are transported free of charge.

With the exception of monthly and annual tickets, all tickets can be purchased on the bus. Monthly and annual tickets are available from City Hall / City Ticket Office Stadtwerke Dingolfing GmbH / Ticket Office Tabakwarengeschäft Reindl, Marienplatz.

The buses run according to the public timetable from Monday to Friday inclusive; on Saturdays: journey starts one hour later and only until 12.00 noon; last journey from Spitalplatz. Bayernticket and Deutschlandticket are valid.
